The city schools will close Friday for two weeks' vacation.

H. W. Carr reopened his market on Water street Monday.

Mrs. Winfield Hinckley, of Bluehill, is visiting relatives in Ellsworth.

There will be a social dance at Odd Fellows hall next Saturday evening.

The Thanksgiving eve ball of the Dirigo athletic club will be a masquerade.

Henry Gould, who has been seriously ill with peritonitis, is now improving.

Supper will be served at the Congregational chapel this evening at 6 o'clock.

Isaac T. Smith, who has been in poor health a long time, is now in a critical condition.

Charles, the five-year-old son of Byron Getchell, is seriously ill with typhoid fever.

The first extra after the dancing school will be held at Odd Fellows hall next Monday night.

Miss Harriet L. Mason left Saturday for Old Town, where she will be employed as stenographer.

Mrs. Maria Howell returned to Bangor Saturday, after a week's visit with relatives in this city.

The Epworth League of the Methodist church will give a birthday social at the vestry Saturday evening.

Curtis R. Foster has been appointed superintendent of Woodbine cemetery in place of the late N. H. Higgins.

Rev. David Kerr, of the Baptist church, will deliver the address at the meeting of Eggemoggin local union C. E. at Brooklin this evening.

Ellsworth people are profiting by competition between rival oil companies, and getting their kerosene for 9 cents a gallon at present.

Mrs. Emory J. Johnson, mother of Mrs. H. W. Carr, of this city, died at her home in Brewer last Thursday morning, aged fifty-seven years.

Union Thanksgiving day service will be held at the Methodist church this year. The sermon will be by Rev. David Kerr, of the Baptist church.

Charles H. Emery, of this city, has sold to Capt. Frank W. Goodwin, of Bangor, one-half of township No. 10, about 10,000 acres, reserving the water privileges.

H. C. Stratton, Edward Monohon and Frank Young returned last Thursday from a week's hunting trip on Narragansett waters. They brought back two deer.

Dr. H. L. D. Woodruff, of this city, while driving to North Hancock last Friday, saw a large bull moose in a field beside the road. The moose made off into the woods on a trot.

Dr. R. L. Grindle, of Mt. Desert, was in Ellsworth to-day on his way home from Portland, where he attended a meeting of the McKinley memorial committee, of which he is a member.

H. V. Starrett, representing that invaluable desk-book, the Maine Register, is in Ellsworth gathering material for the next edition of the work. G. M. Donham, Portland, is the publisher.

The November committee of ladies of the Congregational church will hold a sale of outing flannel garments and cooked food at room 14, Manning block, Saturday afternoon, from 2 to 4 o'clock.

Charles A. Conary, blacksmith at Elmer E. Rowe's carriage factory, spent a few days at his home in Bluehill last week, on business. During an hour's leisure he shot a deer. His Ellsworth friends are feasting on venison.

A meeting of the merchants' carnival committee was held at the office of the secretary, L. F. Giles, last Wednesday evening. Reports showed a balance of something like $125 in the hands of the treasurer, with all bills paid.

At the meeting of the Unitarian society last Wednesday evening, memorial resolutions for the late John D. Hopkins, for many years president of the society, were passed, and ordered spread upon the records. The financial reports were received and approved. The meeting adjourned sine die.

The store opposite the Maine Central station, owned by H. B. Phillips, that has been run for some years past by Sumner Fifield, has been sold to B. F. Phillips, who will conduct a general grocery and provision store.

The party to be given by the Unity club at Odd Fellows hall Friday evening, promises to be one of the prettiest social affairs of the season. Dancing and whist will be the amusements. Music by Monaghan's orchestra.

Miss Minnie E. McMullan, daughter of John McMullan, died suddenly last Thursday morning, at her home on Water street, of heart disease. She had been in poor health some time. She was in the twenty-first year of her age.

Rev. David L. Yale, of the Central church, has been invited to preach early in December in one of the larger churches of New England, and to look over its field, a parish of over 600 families, with a view to becoming pastor. Mr. Yale has not yet decided what he will do.—Bath Daily Times.

The ladies' aid society of the Baptist church will give a supper in the vestry next Wednesday evening at 6 o'clock. There will be in connection with the supper, a special Thanksgiving programme of music and readings.

Frances, the twelve-year-old daughter of Carlton McGown, who has been seriously ill with peritonitis, seemed to be improving last week, but suffered a relapse, and is now in a very critical condition, with typhoid symptoms.

John Donovan, father of City Marshal Donovan, is in Bangor hospital for an operation. Mr. Donovan injured one toe some time ago. Blood-poisoning followed, and it is feared now that amputation of the entire foot will be necessary.

Miss Carrie M. Crockett, of Vinalhaven, whom the Onasoson club expected to have read here, was unable to come on either of the dates wanted, and the entertainment has been indefinitely postponed. It is hoped to have Miss Crockett read here later in the season.

The Ellsworth men interested in forming the Ellsworth, Tremont & Stonington steamboat company, to run a boat between those towns and Ellsworth, held a meeting last evening. The company is now looking for a suitable boat for the route. Several which are available are under consideration.

It is next to impossible to have too good communications with adjoining towns, and it is hoped that the proposed steamboat line between here and Ellsworth, touching at intervening points, will materialize. This line would be a great convenience to our business men, as a great deal of business would be done with Ellsworth, especially in the lumber trade.—Stonington correspondent Deer Isle Messenger.

The mayor and aldermen yesterday afternoon inspected the work of filling at the approaches to the new Bangor bridge. Some more work must be done to make it satisfactory to the city officers. The city will continue the work further, taking off the hill at the west side of the bridge to make the grade to the bridge easier, and at the same time widening and rounding the roadbed.

There were two driving accidents of a very similar nature in Ellsworth Monday evening. John B. Wiswell was driving up State street near O. R. Burnham's store, when his buggy collided with another team. Mr. Wiswell was driving toward the electric light, and could not see the other team approaching. Mr. Wiswell's buggy was turned bottom up in an instant with him under it. The horse cleared himself. Mr. Wiswell escaped with slight bruises. His buggy those baking powders are made from alum?

Their lower price, their unfamiliar names, generally betray them.

But it is not necessary for you to know. You know that Royal does not contain alum, that it makes the best food, that it is pure and healthful. You know that alum powders are unhealthy. This knowledge is sufficient to enable you to protect yourself and your family from alum baking powders and the evil results which are certain to follow their use.

The Distress Warrant.

The distress warrant issued by late City Treasurer Higgins against Tax Collector Roscoe Holmes for 1900 tax, was returnable Friday. A statement submitted by Collector Holmes showed that he had succeeded in collecting about half the uncollected taxes in his hands at the time the warrant was issued. On this showing, it was decided to issue another alias extending the time for returning balance of taxes for 1900 three months. Collector Holmes promises that delinquent tax-payers will pay within the three months, or take the consequences. He must resort to severe measures to save himself from an unpleasant predicament. The distress warrant issued against Tax Collector H. F. Whitcomb for the 1899 tax is returnable on Friday of this week. He also will make a good showing in collections for the past three months, and it is probable that an alias will be issued extending his time for collection of the balance three months.

Letter to Frank Moore,

Ellsworth.

Dear Sir: It is your business to know what materials to put into a house as well as to plan it. Of course you know the effect of zinc on lead in paint—toughens it. Do you also know the greater effect of zinc ground in?

For a painter can't grind; he can only mix. Devote lead and zinc is thoroughly ground in oil. The result is an intimate mixture.

Your painter can only mix; he can't grind; there's no need of grinding by hand. He should buy lead and zinc ground together in oil.

Devote lead and zinc is that; the proportions are right besides. It outlasts lead and oil two to one, and costs no more—even less; for hand-work can't compete with machine-work.

Yours truly,

A 16 F. W. DEVOTE & CO.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

People For the Week Beginning Nov. 24.—Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

TORONTO.—Thanksgiving.—Isa. xxi, 1-8.

Thanksgiving should have a very prominent place in our Christian lives. We are enjoined by the word of God to engage in many religious duties, such as prayer, study, meditation, but to none of these duties is that of thanksgiving placed second. God's word throughout calls upon us to praise the Lord, to exalt His name at all times and "in everything to give thanks." The religious history of the world illustrates to us very clearly the naturalness and appropriateness of thanksgiving to God. Nature as well as Scripture enforces the duty of thanksgiving. The first forms of worship among all nations were altars and sacrifices, the purpose of which was to express thanksgiving to God for some recognized blessing. "It is as the giver of benefits that man seems first to have recognized God. One of the earliest forms of religion was sun worship, and the reason for selecting the sun as the object of religious regard was the manifest fact that from the sun man derives so many and such great blessings. The very name 'God' is probably a modification of the root 'gut,' or 'good,' and was given to the Supreme Being by our Anglo-Saxon forefathers in recognition of His goodness in bestowing upon us so many blessings. The first religious utterances seem to have the shape of hymns rather than prayers, and hymns or psalms form the most antique portions of our rituals." This natural tendency to thank God pervades us, as it did those who have gone before us, and we should follow in the footsteps of the ancients and foster and cultivate.

Thanksgiving should be rendered unto God for what He is. He is God and as God is worthy of our highest adoration and praise. "O Lord, thou art my God! I will exalt thee. I will praise Thy name." Our God is the only living and true God, the infinite and sovereign God, sublime in majesty, perfect in holiness and in all His attributes. "Who is like unto Thee, O Lord, among the gods? Who is like Thee, glorious in holiness, fearful in praises, doing wonders?" For what He is the angels around God's throne are constantly praising Him.

Cherubim and seraphim falling down before Thee, Which wert and art and ever more shalt be.

Well may we join in the anthem and praise God for what He is!

Thanksgiving should be rendered unto God for what He does. "I will praise Thy name, for Thou hast done wonderful things." Among the wonderful things Isaiah goes on to mention the execution of God's judgments, their effect upon the heathen and the salvation which God has vouchsafed unto His people. To enumerate all that God has done and is doing, for which we should thank Him, would be impossible. "Every good and perfect gift cometh from above." For temporal, spiritual, individual, family and national blessings we should cease not to thank Almighty God. "Great and marvelous are Thy works, Lord God Almighty. Just and true are Thy ways, Thou King of Saints, Who shall not fear Thee, O God, and glorify Thy name? For Thou only are holy; for all nations shall come and worship Thee; for Thy judgments are manifest." Such is the song of Moses and the Lamb, and we need not wait until we reach the heavenly shore to join in it. "Praise ye the Lord."

THE PRAYER MEETING.

Arrange a special Thanksgiving programme.

BIBLE READINGS.

Ps. xxxiv, 1-8; xlviii, 1; lxxv, 1, 2; lxxxi, 1-3; xlii, 1-5; cxlvii, 1-20; II Cor. ix, 10-12; Phil. iv, 4-6; Col. iii, 6, 7; Rev. vii, 11, 12.

In the Way of Salvation.

The hard part in the way of salvation, if there be a hard part at all, is constancy. It is endurance in little things and endurance to the end; it is remaining faithful unto death rather than doing some great thing or conquering in some fierce and agonizing battle. The Christian builds up his character, or the tower of its strength, little by little, stone by stone. In the rising wall or he fights his battle with one evil at a time, the rest being restrained by that beneficent power which fights with him and freely lends its almighty aid. "Ye shall not be tempted greater than ye can bear." To him who fights in earnest the issue of the battle is not doubtful.—Helper.

Forget.

Put a seal upon your lips and forget what you have done. After you have been kind, after love has stolen forth into the world and done its beautiful work, go back into the shade again and say nothing about it. Love hides even from itself.—Professor Drummond.

Unlocks the Treasures

Faith is the hand that lays hold on Christ, the eye that looks to Christ, the ear that hears the voice of Christ, the mouth that feeds on Christ, the finger that touches Christ and the key that unlocks the treasures of Christ.—Rev. F. Harper.

A Disciple's Prayer.

At sunrise pray: "Now, Lord, Thy day begins; receive my thanks; grant strength; wash out my sins."

My feet must stumble if I walk alone; lonely my heart till beating by Thine own. My will is weakness till it rest in Thine; Cut off, I wither, thirsting for the Vine. My deeds are dry leaves on a sapless tree; My life is lifeless till it live in Thee!

At sunset this: "Now, Lord, Thy daylight fades; Guide Thou my craft amidst the gathering shades. I thank Thee that Thou steered my frail bark, O faithful Pilot, o'er these waters dark! The waves have bared their threatening fangs of white; I put 'precipice' still! Thou speakest. Now comes night."

Put down mine anchor in the silent sea; Through the long watches I am safe with Thee! —Christian Endeavor World.

Mutual Benefit Column.

EDITED BY "AUNT MADGE."

Its Motto: "Helpful and Helpful."

The purposes of this column are succinctly stated in the title and motto—it is for the mutual benefit, and aims to be helpful and helpful. Being for the common good, it is for the common use—a public servant, a purveyor of information and suggestion, a medium for the interchange of ideas. In this capacity it solicits communications, and its success depends largely on the support given it in this respect. Communications must be signed, but the name of writer will not be printed except by permission. Communications will be subject to approval or rejection by the editor of the column, but none will be rejected without good reason. Address all communications to

THE AMERICAN, Ellsworth, Me.

There's a glory on the mountain
That the valley never wears,
There are pleasures on the hilltop
That the lowland never shares.
But we cannot all be dwellers
On the mountain top sublime;
Some must live their lives of labor
In the vale of toil and grime.
And though mists and shadows greet us
While the upland all is bright,
God, our God, is in the valley
Just the same as on the height.
—Emma C. Dowd.

Master, I do not ask that Thou
With milk and wine my table spread,
So much as for the will to plow
And sow my fields and earn my bread,
Lest at Thy coming I be found
A useless cumber of the ground.
—Alice Cary.

Dear M. B. Friends:

There came upon the piazza one afternoon last summer a bright looking young fellow who had a package of papers in his hand. He passed me a paper, at the same time remarking that as he was down this way for a short time he had come into town to secure subscribers.

I said, "Oh, you are from Good Will Farm," for the copy I held in my hand was a Good Will Record. He replied that he was, and that his name was Eccles. Then I said, "There were two of that name at the farm", and his face lighted up as he responded, "I guess you know something about Good Will Farm".

Now perhaps you all know something about Good Will Farm, but it is a subject and an object in which I have been interested for years and I thought it might not be amiss to give a little space to it in our column.

Our motto represents the spirit and purpose of the Good Will enterprise. It was begun as a home for homeless boys by Rev. G. W. Hinckley about twelve years ago. Good Will cottage was opened to boys Sept. 1, 1889. Fifteen boys were received and the first home was established. The work has grown so rapidly that on Sept. 1, 1901, ninety boys and thirty girls have homes in the various cottages. The Good Will Farm for boys consists of 330 acres. I noticed in the November Record this item:

Good Will's oat crop is not as large as usual this year—430 bushels. Her potato crop is the best in her history—925 bushels.

On the boys farm there are six cottages, a school building and a chapel. The Good Will homes for girls are situated about a mile from the boys' homes, both of which are at East Fairfield, about nine miles north of Waterville. The girls' homes embrace a tract of land of 125 acres. There are two cottages and a fine educational building.

The work is undenominational and is dependent for existence and support upon voluntary contributions, with the exception of the income from a small fund and small sums paid for individual boys and girls by friends. The subscription price of the Record is 50 cents a year, and any letters may be addressed to Rev. G. W. Hinckley, East Fairfield, Maine.

The good work being done through this opening of homes to those who need the influence and protection and help there bestowed upon them, can never be estimated. Anything and everything necessary to the maintaining of a home is acceptable at the Good Will farms—table linen, bed linen, clothing, mittens, stockings. I wonder if the M. B.'s cannot do something between now and Christmas for this cause.

We will not forget the Home Sunshine department, either. Cannot "Aunt Dorcas" or "Janet", or some other good sister, devise a way whereby we can give mutual help to these societies in which some of us are personally interested. I know of readers of this column who are planning and hoping to send barrels of needed articles to the southern field. Can it be possible that there are persons in the world who see no place in which to lend a helping hand; who see no empty, waiting hands stretched out to them in mute appeal; nothing to do, while the sympathetic workers are powerless to answer all the demands upon their hearts, their time and their purses?

CRANBERRY PIE—Take fine, sound ripe cranberries, and with a sharp knife split each one until you have a heaping cupful; put them in a larger dish and mix thoroughly with 1 cup of white sugar, ¼ cup of water and a tablespoon full of sifted flour. Bake with two crusts.

BAKED CUSTARD PIE—Beat up the yolks of 3 eggs to a cream. Stir thoroughly a tablespoon full of flour into 3 tablespoons of sugar; this separates the particles of flour so that there will be no lumps; then add it to the beaten yolks put in a pinch of salt, a teaspoonful of vanilla, and a little grated nutmeg; next, the well beaten whites of the eggs, and lastly a pint of scalded milk (not boiled) which has been cooled. Mix this in by degrees, and turn all into a deep pie pan lined with puff paste, and bake from twenty-five to thirty minutes.

This recipe is from a celebrated cook in one of the best New York bakeries. He was asked why it was that their custard pies had that look of solidity and smoothness that home-made pies have not. He replied, "the secret is the addition of this bit of flour—not that it thickens the custard any to speak of, but prevents the custard from breaking or weeping, and gives that smooth appearance when cut".

IRRITABLE WOMEN

Should be Pitied — Not Blamed — Men Don't Understand How They Suffer When They Cry, "Oh, Don't Speak to Me."

All manner of extravagant expressions are possible when a woman's nerves are overwrought.

The spasm at the top of the wind pipe or bronchial tubes, "ball rising in the throat," violent beating of the heart, laughing and crying by turns, muscular spasms (throwing the arms about), frightened by the most insignificant occurrences — are all symptoms of a hysterical condition and serious derangement of the female organs.

Any female complaint may produce hysterics, which must be regarded as a symptom only. The cause, however, yields quickly to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which acts at once upon the organ afflicted and the nerve centres, dispelling effectually all those distressing symptoms.

Mrs. Lewis Says: "I Feel Like a New Person, Physically and Mentally."

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I wish to speak a good word for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. For years I had ovarian trouble and suffered everything from nervousness, severe headache, and pain in back and abdomen. I had consulted different physicians, but decided to try your medicine, and I soon found it was giving me much relief. I continued its use and now am feeling like a new person, physically and mentally, and am glad to add one more testimonial to the value of your remedy."—MRS. M. H. LEWIS, 2108 Valentine Ave., Tremont, New York, N.Y.

Writing to Mrs. Pinkham is the quickest and surest way to get the right advice about all female troubles. Her address is Lynn, Mass. She advises women free. Following is an instance:

Mrs. Haven's First Letter to Mrs. Pinkham.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I would like your advice in regard to my troubles. I suffer every month at time of menstruation, and flow so much, and for so long that I become very weak, also get very dizzy. I am troubled with a discharge before and after menses, have pains in ovaries so bad sometimes that I can hardly get around, have sore feeling in lower part of bowels, pain in back, bearing-down feeling, a desire to pass urine frequently, with pains in passing it; have leucorrhoea, headache, fainting spells, and sometimes have hysteria. My blood is not in good condition. Hoping to hear from you, I am, MRS. EMMA HAVEN, 2508 South Ave., Council Bluffs, Iowa." (June 3, 1899.)

Mrs. Haven's Second Letter.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I wish to express my gratitude for what you have done for me. I suffered for four years with womb troubles. Every month I flowed very badly. I got so bad that I could hardly do my work. Was obliged to sit or lie down most of the time. I doctored for a long time, but obtained no relief. I began using your remedies—Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, Blood Purifier, Sanative Wash and Liver Pills—and now feel like a new woman."—MRS. EMMA HAVEN, 2508 South Ave., Council Bluffs, Iowa. (Feb. 1, 1900.)

$5000 REWARD.—We have deposited with the National City Bank of Lynn, $5000, which will be paid to any person who can find that the above testimonial letters are not genuine, or were published without obtaining the writer's special permission. Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

WITNESS WENT HOME.

How Shrewd Back Woodsman Got Excused from Court.

Up around Moosehead lake they are telling an amusing story of how one of the witnesses in the Threlkelt case, tried at Skowhegan last week, who became tired of waiting around the court room, succeeded in getting excused from attendance upon the court, and returned home without testifying, and at the same time made $10.

This particular witness, noted in the Moosehead section as a shrewd man, was summoned to appear at Skowhegan. When the trial began he was in the court room.

After staying around for a day or two he commenced to wish himself back home. He went to one of the court officers, whom he knew, and asked him if he supposed he could get away. The officer said that he rather guessed not—that the witness would be arrested if he tried to go.

This made the old man mad, and he exclaimed: "I'll bet you ten dollars that I go home to-day!" "Take you!" answered the officer, and the money was put up.

That noon the witness got a moment's conversation with the attorney for whose side he was to appear and asked him to allow him to go. Of course the lawyer said no, whereupon the old man, with a great deal of sadness in his voice, said: "Well, it's pretty hard, pretty hard!" "How's it hard?" asked the lawyer.

"My wife's dead."

That was all the homesick witness said, but it was sufficient. The heart of the lawyer was touched, and he said in a much more gentle voice: "You speak to me when we get into court this afternoon, and I guess we can fix it."

That afternoon he was spoken to, and according to promise he had the witness excused. The witness went and collected his money from the officer and left on the first train for home. Sometime later in the progress of the trial it developed that, while he had told only the truth, his wife had been dead fifteen years.

One Purpose.

"Father," said the young son of the eminent medical and scientific authority, "if all the diseases come from germs, as you say they do, what good do germs do? Wasn't it a mistake to create them?" "Why—er—germs, Lionel," replied the paternal ancestor, "may be said to serve the—er—purpose of— You are rather young, however, to understand such things fully, but I may mention that I am to write an article on that subject next month for one of the magazines, for which they pay me $500."—Chicago Tribune.

His Recommendation.

On his ball-room floor the last party he gave six people broke their legs before 12 o'clock, and an old gentleman broke his neck down the stairs. It was I, madam, who polished that floor and staircase."—London Answers.

A Question of Knowing.

"Ah, professor," exclaimed the conceited young man condescendingly, "I wish I knew as much as you do." "You would know more than I," replied the shrewd professor, who understood this young man. "If you only knew as much as you think you know."—Catholic Standard and Times.

ARTISTIC BOOK BINDING.

How the "Tooling" Is Done on the Leather Covers.

Strange as it may seem to the ordinary reader, it is nevertheless a fact that there is no such thing as set or ready made designs for decorating leather bindings and covers—that is, when the artist who does the tooling on these fine bindings begins to work he has no drawn design to go by. Each workman invents his own design as he proceeds with his task. Of course it sometimes happens that a book has to be tooled exactly like another book except for the title, but as a general thing the artist follows his own fancy in designing the book in one of several general styles of tooling, all the details being left to his own judgment.

"Tooling," which is the technical term for the really artistic art of bookbinding, is done in the following way: After the pages have been sewed together, their edges trimmed and gilded, the pasteboard cover put on and the leather sides and back put in place, the book is given to the "tooler," who clamps it firmly into position in a vise very much like that used by carpenters. After the book is firmly in position, sizing is put on the part to be tooled, and over this sheets of gold leaf are spread. Then the artist, or "tooler," takes a small type in the form of a flower, letter, scroll or whatever figure he wants, and, after heating it to a certain temperature, he presses it down firmly on the gold leaf, thus actually burning the gold into the leather.

Behind each workman is a set of shelves containing all the different types or stamps in use. Under the place where each tool belongs is a print of the type or stamps in use. Under the place where each tool belongs is a print of the type itself made on white paper, pasted up not only to mark the place where each tool should be, but also to enable the worker to make a ready selection of type and to prevent mistakes. Necessarily there are a great many of these types and a large range of designs, for they represent not only the alphabet in every style of letter, but also every known flower in its conventionalized form, as well as various sorts and sizes of scrolls and conventional designs. This makes it an easier matter for the artist to design the cover of a book while he is actually engaged at work on it than at first seems possible.

After the design is burned into the leather the paper is pasted into the boards, and then, in the case of the one-half and three-fourths bindings, the book is finished and ready to be packed and shipped to its destination.

Nowadays it is no longer good form to have the edges of the pages gilded on all three sides. That style is now very much behind the times and affects a book's value. Moreover, the price of a book deteriorates very materially the minute its pages are cut. Whether this is the result of the germ theory of contagion or not it is undeniably true that to date young men would as soon think of giving a book with torn and dirty pages to a young woman as he would of presenting to her a book with the pages already cut. Of course this has naturally led to a marked change in the style of gilding. It is almost a necessity to have the top of the pages gilded, for unless this were done the book would soon become soiled from the dust settling on it and, sifting down on the leaves, make them dirty and gritty to the touch. For this reason most of the fine books have only the upper edges of their pages gilded. This allows the dust to settle on the top, whence it can be brushed off readily and yet makes it possible for the pages to be cut by the purchaser.—Brooklyn Eagle.

A Drunken Man's Bonnet.

Once when Sir Horace St. Paul was at college he found a man lying drunk in the quadrangle and tried to make him get up. "You're drunk," he said; "you don't even know who I am." "Yes, I know very well who you are," said the man. "You're the fellow that wrote an epistle to Timothy and never got an answer." This is often quoted as one of the naturally clever retorts of drunken men.

A curious custom prevails in Korea. If a man meets his wife in the street, he ignores her presence and passes her as if she were a stranger.

When a man flatters himself he knows a woman, he flatters himself.

THE PEOPLE KNEW HIM.

(Benson's Plaster is Pain's Master.) George Washington made and sold flour, and every barrel of flour in the market branded "G. Washington, Mount Vernon," sold without delay. No question was ever raised as to quality or weight.

Benson's Porous Plaster sells on its reputation everywhere. All the buyer wants to be certain of is that the plaster offered him really is Benson's, and not a worthless imitation of it or substitute for it.

A plaster is the best form of external remedy, and Benson's is the best plaster; 5,000 physicians and druggists, and a multitude of people no man can number, have settled that. "You can trust it," they say. Coughs, colds, lame back, lumbago, muscular stiffness and rheumatism, troubles of the liver and kidneys, influenza or grip, pneumonia, and all other diseases open to external treatment, are at once relieved and cured by Benson's Plaster.

Do not assume that Belladonna, Capsicum or S. R. strengthening plasters are "just as good as" Benson's. They are vastly inferior. No other plaster is as good as Benson's.

In competition with the best-known plasters of Europe and America, Benson's have received fifty-five highest awards.

The Art of Looking and Keeping Well.

The carriage and position of the body, during both the day and the night, have much to do with one's figure, health and appearance. How quickly one can distinguish an army or navy officer on the street, though he is a stranger! How many would give a fortune to possess such a figure and bearing! And yet almost anyone who has not some natural deformity can acquire it, by observing a few simple rules and practicing a few easy exercises. As you know, it takes but a few weeks or months of discipline and drill to change uncouth, slovenly, raw recruits into fine, erect and dignified soldiers.

Always, when standing or walking, hold yourself as erect as possible; throw the shoulders back and down, elevate the chest a little, and draw the chin in a trifle. When standing, the weight of the body should fall upon the ball of the foot, neither upon the heel nor the toe.

No one can have a good figure without throwing the chest well forward, the shoulders back and down, and carrying the body in an erect position. Follow these simple rules strictly, and you will greatly improve your figure and bearing. Do not bend the legs too much when walking, and let the weight fall slightly more on the heel first. Swing the arms naturally, but not too much.—Success.

An Era of Longevity.

That the improved conditions of modern existence have added materially to the longevity of mankind is a matter that is being taken seriously in commercial circles. The Actuarial Society of America is to compile a new series of tables for the life insurance companies of the United States, which, the society maintains, will show a decrease of mortality among the people of this country. It is expected to have the effect of decreasing the premium rates now charged, as the whole life insurance business is based on mortality tables.

It cannot be doubted that, with sobriety and moderation in all things, the average man can live to an old age. The purification of foods, the marked advance in medicine and surgery, the wonders of modern science, are all assisting to prolong the existence of the man of the twentieth century. It remains for him to educate himself to enjoy that existence with contentment and success.—Success.

THE GRAVE OF KEATS.

I have beheld that grave with violets dim
In the great Caesar's city, where he sleeps,
And over it a little laurel sweeps,
Fruited and leafed eternally for him.
Not far away a pine, of sturdier limb,
Leaf, flower and grass the mellow sunlight steeps.
And this dear grave! Ah, how the soul upheaves,
The breath comes trembling, and the eyes swim!

In dreams that bordered close the sleep of death
He felt the blowing flowers above his breast;
This moment I beheld a wondrous thing,
These blossoms, stirring in the wind's light breath.

Do not they feel above all violets blent
The ever vital dust from whence they spring!

"VANESSA"

The Story of a Slight Misunderstanding.

"I did not see you down in Wadsworth wood last night, Hardestadt?" said Henry James Dwight to his friend, leisurely lighting a cigar as he spoke.

"No, I have not been for a week or two. Last time I was down I took an old lady there."

"An old lady! Well, I've given over troubling myself about them now. What I am anxious about at present is that Camberwell beauty."

Rose Craven, the girl who was listening to this conversation from the other side of the clipped yew hedge, waited eagerly for the next remark. She had not realized, being a woman, that there was anything dishonorable in listening to the conclusion of a conversation, the commencement of which she had accidentally overheard. She was especially anxious as to what she was to hear next, because she knew herself to be the girl from Camberwell—she had just quitted a school there to whom her cousin and fiancé, Dwight, had referred. Certainly the allusion was flattering, and yet Rose Craven did not like the blip on the tongue in which it was spoken.

"Beautiful creature, that," said Hardestadt enthusiastically, in response to his friend's remark. "What a lovely color!"

"Yes; altogether a charming thing. And worth quite a lot of money too."

"I understand so. Takes some catching, though."

"That's the difficulty—to make the catch," said Harry Dwight. "I have been trying for several months."

"Only one," murmured poor Rose to herself. She remembered, only too well, how long it was since her handsome cousin had come to stay at their farm. Dwight was a medical student, and his lengthy stay at Wadsworth Hall farm was due to the examinations for which he was preparing there in quiet. Hardestadt was an acquaintance he had made in the neighborhood.

Rose Craven had indeed a lovely color as she turned away and with cheeks blushing with anger walked slowly into the house. So this was how Harry talked of her—what Harry thought of her really! There was not a word of that beautiful sentiment he had spoken to her—not a word of love at all. She was a difficult catch, she was worth a lot of money, those were the things he said about her. She resolved to control herself and have no more to do with the man. Indeed, within an hour she had resolved to break off her engagement at once, and she hoped that her cousin would immediately quit the Hall farm if she did so.

Dwight was considerably astonished when he went in to tea at the change which had taken place in the behavior of Rose toward him. She sat silent and reserved throughout the meal, over which her aunt presided, and allowed Hardestadt and her uncle, usually the most silent members of the party, to sustain the conversation. At the close of the meal she requested Dwight to grant her the favor of a few minutes' conversation, and together they walked down to the summer house at the bottom of the garden.

"Have I done something amiss, Rose?" said Dwight lightly as they entered.

"I can enter into no explanations with you, Mr. Dwight," replied Rose steadily. "I must beg you to ask none from me. I have only to request that you will release me from the engagement I entered into with you."

"Release you from our engagement?" stammered Harry Dwight. "What do you mean, Rose? You cannot be in earnest."

"I am thoroughly in earnest."

"But whatever can your reasons be? I am not conscious of having done anything to offend you."

"I have my reasons, Mr. Dwight. I trust that you have enough of the gentleman about you to accede to my request without demanding explanations."

"But it is decided hard on a fellow," protested Harry, "to be sent to the right about without a word of explanation."

"Nevertheless, I beg you to accept the situation."

"Of course," said Dwight brokenly, "if you give me no alternative, I must accede to your request for a release. But I cannot help thinking that there is some misunderstanding. If you know how I love you, Rose?"

"Mr. Dwight, I neither know nor desire to know what your feelings may be."

This answer naturally awakened some resentment in the mind of the young man. He attempted to expostulate, but Rose cut him short.

"Nothing is to be gained by discussing the matter further, Mr. Dwight," she said.

And realizing that such was the case, Harry quietly raised his hat and slowly and dependently returned to the house. The following morning he announced that he was about to leave the farm and that he would return to the city upon the following day.

It was a still, calm, altogether lovely evening on which Dwight set off for what he expected would be his last walk through Wadsworth wood—for some time at any rate. As usual, upon his solitary rambles, he carried the green net which marks the entomologist, for Harry was enthusiastic in his pursuit of that study. On that particular evening, however, it was questionable if the rarest moth that ever took wing would have succeeded in attracting his attention, for he was in a state of utter, abject and absorbed dependency.

Perhaps it was something of a coincidence that Rose, whose anger had evaporated and who was in a state of wretchedness as complete as Harry's, should also be attracted out of doors by the cool of the evening and should select Wadsworth wood as her destination. However that may be, the lovers met, in a place where they had often met before, just within the shade of the trees. On seeing Dwight, Rose's first impulse was to return in the direction from which she had just come. She had retraced her steps a few yards, without speaking a word to the young man, when she heard his steps behind her, and in another moment an arm slipped around her waist. Harry Dwight had resolved to use to the utmost his influence in order to obtain an explanation from her.

"Mr. Dwight!" cried Rose indignantly. "I request you to desist at once from your impertinence."

The young man, perhaps encouraged by a suspicious trembling in the voice of the girl, did not in the least obviate his objectionable conduct.

"Rose, darling," he said without removing his arm, "don't be so cruel to me. I cannot bear to go away tomorrow leaving matters as they are at present. In God's sight, Rose, I can say that I have not done anything to make myself more unworthy of you than I have always known myself to be."

"That may be," rejoined the girl, "but I did not previously know how unworthy that was."

"Rose, Rose! Every word you say cuts me to the heart. I protest that I have nothing on my conscience. Rose, darling, remember all the walks we have had here at times, and for the sake of the memory of what we have been to each other give me the chance to explain away this misunderstanding."

Perhaps it was the sentimentality always produced in the mind of youth by a beautiful summer evening that led Rose to break the resolve she had made.

"Harry," she said, standing still, and in the dim light he could not perceive in her eyes the tears of which he could detect the presence through her voice. "Harry, I will tell you all, though it seems impossible that you should ever be able to explain it away. I have been judging you out of your own mouth. I overheard by accident the conversation between you and Mr. Hardestadt yesterday. I was behind the hedge while you were speaking."

"I do not recollect what Hardestadt and I were talking about," said Dwight.

"Oh, Harry! Don't make things worse by telling lies! You must recollect."

"On my honor I do not. Or, stay, I think we were talking about entomology. What was it you heard that upset you?"

The tone in which Dwight spoke was one of genuine surprise and innocence. For a moment Rose indulged in hope, and then, as the words she had overheard came back to her mind with freshness, she burst into sobs.

"You began by talking about this wood," she said. "Mr. Hardestadt said something about taking an old lady here. Then you said, 'I went on Rose tearfully. 'That what you were after now was the girl from Camberwell. And you said what a good catch I should be and what a lot of money I was worth. Oh, I overheard all your mean, mercenary talk.'"

And a sudden burst of anger almost choked the girl.

"Was that what I said?" queried the amazed Dwight. "Were those the very words I used?"

"The very words," declared Rose.

"Did I say 'That girl from Camberwell is worth a lot of money?'" said Dwight perplexedly.

"You did. Those were your words, I think. Or, stay, you said 'that Camberwell beauty' and the way you said that was an insult."

But instead of being overcome by this information Dwight, to the utter surprise of Rose, burst into a peal of laughter.

"Vanessa Antipati!" he cried. "I swear, Rose, that I was talking about Vanessa Antipati."

"Another girl?" cried Rose, with flashing eyes.

Harry Dwight's laughter was renewed. "No girl at all, Rose," he declared, "but merely a butterfly, the Camberwell beauty; Latin name, Vanessa Antipati. I'll show it to you in Newman when we get back if you don't believe me. It is a rare insect, worth a good deal of money and difficult to catch, believe me."

And before Rose had time to decide whether she believed him or not she found that he had taken it for granted she did.—Penny Pictorial Magazine.

No New Women There.

It is extremely difficult for Chinese of the higher classes to find husbands for their daughters whose feet have attained the natural size. It is thought that women who desire unmarriageable feet are actuated by no honorable motive, the crippling making it difficult for them to go about and keeping them more closely at home than would be the case if they had full use of the stunted members.

Love between husband and wife as it exists among Christian people is unknown in China, and it is a subject that it is not considered decorous to discuss.

Suicide is common among women of all classes, and, aside from grief after bereavement, unhappiness in marriage is the most common cause of such tragedies. Hundreds of wives, it is estimated, end their lives every year in Peking alone.

Beau Nash.

Beau Nash, who, like Beau Fielding and Beau Brummel, expiated his contemptible vanity in an old age of obscurity, want and misery, was reduced to strange expedients between 1695 and 1705. A favorite resource was the acceptance of extraordinary wagers. Being at York and having lost all his money, some of his friends promised to equip him with 50 guineas upon this proviso, that he would stand at the great door of the minister attired only in a blanket as the people were coming out of the church.

To this he agreed, but the dean passing out knew him. "What," cried the divine, "Mr. Nash in a masquerade?"

"Only a Yorkshire penance, Mr. Dean, for keeping bad company," said Nash, pointing to his companions.

The Fate of Temple Bar.

It is ludicrously characteristic of English taste that while Temple Bar, with all its associations, was sacrificed in 1873 upon the pretext that it blocked up the highway for traffic a contemptible pillar surrounded by a dragon blocking the way to a far greater extent was set up in 1880 as a memorial of Temple Bar. The statues upon this memorial, representing Queen Victoria and Albert Edward, prince of Wales, are by Boehm. While Temple Bar itself might have been erected as an entrance to the Temple gardens for £500, this absurd "memorial" of it cost £10,000! Temple Bar was rebuilt as the entrance to Sir H. B. Menx's grounds at Theobalds, Waltham Cross, in 1888.—Hare's "Walks in London."

A British soldier recently sent a letter to the war office containing a word that baffled the imagination of every clerk and official to whom the puzzle was submitted. At length it occurred to one of the clerks to consult the hall porter, a grizzled veteran quite unhampered by board school accomplishments.
"Can you tell us the meaning of this word, Simpson?" asked the brilliant clerk.
"I should think I could," replied the veteran, with mild contempt. "Y-f-e spells wife, of course. What else could it spell, sir?"—London King.

THE CIRCUS SAMSON.

TRICKS OF THE STRONG MAN AND HOW MANAGED.

A GOOD DEAL OF HUMBUNG IN THE FEATS HE PERFORMS—KNACK OF BREAKING STONES WITH FIST. TEETH TRICKS EXPLAINED.

"There are tricks in all trades," said the old circus strong man, "but the trade of the circus Hercules is mostly all tricks. Anybody with ordinary strength can do the feats that seem so wonderful when done by these tan bark Samsons. In fact, few of them require any particular muscular exertion, but are accomplished simply by trickery."

"The dumbbells used by the performers are always hollow and weigh much less than the figures marked upon them would indicate. When you see a man pretending to put above his head a bell marked 400 or 500 pounds, you may safely conclude that he is trying to fool you. The very greatest weight ever lifted in this way was 245 pounds, 'Cyclops' accomplishing the feat in Cleveland in 1893. Genuine dumbbells closely resembling the hollow ones are thrown out into the audience for inspection, but these are never the ones used by the strong man or woman."

"Another common feat that arouses wonder is the breaking of stones with the fist. Spectators think that a man who can bring his clenched hand down upon a rock and flake a piece off with one blow must have tremendous muscles, but an ordinary man can do this if he knows how, while, on the other hand, old Samson himself couldn't have done it unless he had been put on to the trick."

"You will notice that the strong man always provides a solid piece of iron or stone upon which to crack his rocks. Now, if he held the stone to be smashed firmly against this support he might pound away at it until doomsday without hurting anything but his fist, but notice closely, and you will see that he holds the small stone a sixteenth of an inch above the support, and when he hits it it's the concussion that breaks it. Any one can do it neatly after a little practice."

"A little more real strength is needed in the feat of lifting a barrel of water and two men with the teeth, but not much. A man of ordinary strength can accomplish it. To begin with, the water barrel, which if genuine would weigh with its contents about 900 pounds, has a false top and bottom and holds only enough water so that a little can be let out of the bung hole to deceive the on-lookers. Fastened to the barrel and to the waist of the performer and concealed by a sash which he wears is a rope. This is deftly hitched to the barrel when it is lifted up for him to take the mouthpiece in his teeth."

"The mouthpiece exactly fits his mouth, so that whatever weight comes here is usually sustained by the jaw. Here comes the thrilling moment! Two men lift themselves upon the barrel, and, with two other sturdy fellows to support his back and keep his balance, the strong man slowly lifts the barrel. Bending back, he supports the weight at an angle of about 45 degrees, apparently with his teeth, but actually upon his chest. It's a sensational act; but, as a matter of fact, more strength is required in the men who support him than in the star performer himself. Not more than 200 pounds were ever actually supported by any athlete in this fashion."

"The mouthpiece used in this trick is employed in all acts where the performers appear to hang by their teeth. It is so constructed that when one gets it in his mouth he cannot let go of it until the weight is taken off. So circus folks do not really support their weight or the weight of any other object by their teeth. It is actually on the neck that most of the strain comes, and performers doing this stunt very much get an abnormal neck development. Nowadays my neck measures sixteen inches, but when I was in the business it was nineteen inches around."

"About the only act that requires real strength is that of supporting a horse on a teeter board, but even in this trick the most important needs are nerve and a well trained horse. Bodily strength comes third. I'll never forget to my dying day the first time I tried this. I had rigged up two chairs as strongly as possible in a barn and fastened them to the floor, after which I had put a board across between them to support a teeter, upon which I had trained my pony to walk. When the animal had learned his lesson thoroughly and would ascend the teeter and balance at the word of command, I prepared for the final test."

"In place of the board connecting the chairs I put my own body. Across my chest I put the teeter board. Then, locking my feet firmly in one chair and my arms around the back of the other, I called, 'Romeo!'

"He came from the hall, straight for the teeter. Then my nerve failed me. I cried 'Whoa!' wildly, but Romeo didn't seem to heed the meaning of the word. He came, directly up the incline. There was backing out. All that I could do was to hang on desperately, and this I did. When Romeo got above my chest, he balanced himself gracefully for awhile—it seemed an hour to me, though it was only a few seconds—then he went off the other side. I had succeeded, and the trick was not so hard as I had feared."

"It appears to the audience as if the man in this act was supporting the weight largely with his neck. Such is not the case, for most of it comes on his arms and legs, and the latter are fastened so that they cannot become loosened. It takes strength, but not extraordinary strength."

"Not unlike this trick, but requiring even less muscular power, is the feat of supporting a lot of people on a board placed across your body while you are bent over backward. This is certainly the easiest way for a man to support his family I know of. Before the athlete bends his body his feet are braced so strongly that they can't slide. Then he bends back and a board is placed across his knees and shoulders, upon which another board is put crosswise for the men to get upon. In this position the bones of the arms and legs support the weight, and as the bone of a healthy human being is pretty strong a number of men may get upon the board without causing the slightest inconvenience. The bones will have to be crushed before anything will give way."—New York Sun.

CITY MEETING.

Memorial Resolutions for Late Alderman N. H. Higgins.

The aldermen held a recess meeting last Friday evening. There were present Mayor Greely, Aldermen Stuart, Jellison and Brady.

The acceptance of the city's proposition for electric light contract removed the principal reason for the meeting. The contract submitted by the Ellsworth Water Co., according to the terms agreed upon, was read, a few minor alterations made, and the contract returned to the company for approval.

Under the new contract the city will get 24 arc and seven series lamps for street lighting, and Hancock hall, the city library, high school and engine house will be lighted, for $1,800 a year, payable monthly. Under the old contract, the library and high school were not included. The new contract for street lights is on the all-night schedule; the old contract was the moonlight schedule.

The city officers will locate the additional street lights. One of the arc lights will be at the curve of Grant street, near the head of the road to the Boston Reduction Co. plant. Some of the series lamps will be on Oak street—one probably at Lincoln street and another at Church street. The other lights have not been located. The new lights will be put in at once.

The board passed the following memorial to the late Alderman Higgins:

For the first time in many years a member of the board of aldermen has been taken away by death. Hon. Nehemiah H. Higgins, alderman from ward 1, and president of the board, died Nov. 9, 1901.

The members of this board, who knew him in its councils and deliberations, realize, more fully perhaps than the general public, how valuable a citizen the city has lost. His judgment in matters of public concern was sound, and his vote invariably was for that which he considered for the public good.

While thus recognizing the city's loss, the members of this board realize also a personal loss in the death of one whose friendship they had enjoyed.

Resolved, That as testimony of our esteem, this brief memorial be inscribed on the city records, and an expression of our sympathy extended to the bereaved family.

SULLIVAN ROBBERY.

PATRICK MULHERN LOST SEVERAL THOUSAND DOLLARS.

AFRAID OF SAVINGS BANKS, HE KEPT MONEY IN HOUSE—AN EASY JOB FOR THE THIEVES.

EAST SULLIVAN, Nov. 16 (special). Patrick Mulhern, of East Sullivan, was robbed of several thousand dollars last night or early this morning. The thieves entered the shed of the house by a window, and opened the safe which was unlocked. There is no clue, but circumstances seem to indicate that someone familiar with the house was implicated in the robbery.

The exact amount of money stolen is not known. Mr. Mulhern thinks there was from $5,000 to $10,000 in the safe; Deputy Sheriff D. L. Fields, of Ellsworth, who investigated the robbery, thinks there may have been less, perhaps $3,000 to $4,000.

Patrick Mulhern is about ninety years of age. By industry, and investment of his earnings, he has amassed a large sum of money. He lived with Mrs. E. C. Hill; there is one other occupant of the house, who is also well along in years.

Mr. Mulhern was afraid of savings banks, so kept his money at the house. For this purpose he bought a safe. Fearing he would forget the combination, he did not use it. The safe was not kept in the main house, but in a shed. It was enclosed in a large box, to which there was a door fastened with chain and padlock. The fact that Mr. Mulhern kept the money in the house was known to everyone in the vicinity.

The burglars entered the shed by removing a pane of glass from the window and shoving back the catch. An attempt had first been made to reach the catch by boring. The anger was dull, evidently, and the burglars adopted the quicker way of removing the pane. The catch was located on one side of the window, and not in the usual place, and the fact that the burglars knew just where to bore for it is one circumstance that one of them at least was thoroughly familiar with the house.

Once in the shed, the burglars had no trouble to get the money. They first took the precaution to fasten the door opening from the house to the shed. Then the box which enclosed the safe was opened by removing the hinges, and the unlocked safe was opened.

Tracks in the snow indicate that there were three of the burglars. They were in no hurry. After opening the safe they took out the drawer containing the money, took it outside, and sat down on a wheelbarrow in the yard to divide the spoils. From here their tracks led across a pasture to the main road, where they could not be followed further.

There is absolutely no clue on which to work, except the suspicion that someone in the vicinity is implicated. It is reported that a young man returning from a dance at 3 o'clock this morning, saw three men in the vicinity, but was not near enough to identify them or to give any description.

Mulhern has no near relatives living. He is in poor health.

was badly smashed. The other team was not damaged. The other accident happened on Water street. Capt. John W. Kane, of Bluehill, collided with a team driven by a young man named Garland. Mr. Kane's buggy was overturned, and he was caught under it in such a way he could not extricate himself until the buggy was righted. No serious damage resulted.

Mrs. Abbie Perkins, formerly of Ellsworth, died last Wednesday night in Bangor, aged about seventy-seven years. She has been in poor health some time. Mrs. Perkins lived in Ellsworth about twenty years, moving to Bangor with her daughter, Mrs. Dora Hopkins, two years ago. Mrs. Hopkins was her only child. Funeral services were held Friday. Interment was at Dexter, where Mrs. Perkins formerly resided.

J. L. Corson, a missionary of the Bible society of Maine, is making a canvass of Ellsworth. In the course of his work he takes a religious census of the city, which is published for the benefit of the churches. If in visiting the houses he finds a family without a bible and too poor to buy one, he gives them one. The work is benevolent and undenominational. Its cost is borne by the churches and benevolent people generally.

Three Ellsworth young men who spent a few days last week at "Moosehust" camp on the "Back Meadow", were the victims of a mean joke by a sportive buck deer Friday. They covered many miles in the forenoon in a tramp after deer without seeing any. While they were in camp for dinner and a game of pitch, a big buck came out on the meadow, and went into the woods. Hereafter when these young men are in camp, one will stand guard at the door.

Harold P. Carter, of West Ellsworth, Alvin Grindle, of Orland, and Harry Harrison, of Franklin, were arrested yesterday by Constable John H. Breenahan, charged with drunkenness and disorderly conduct. The young men created a disturbance by noisy conduct and reckless driving. At the hearing this morning before Judge Peters, of the municipal court, Harrison was found not guilty, and discharged. Carter and Grindle paid fines of $3 and costs each.

The schooner "Lucy Bell" arrived Friday from Boston to take the stone from the Ellsworth schooner "Victory", which put in here three weeks ago, leaking, and has since been lying on the flat near Bonsey's wharf. The "Lucy Bell" is loaded, and will sail for Boston to-day. She did not take all the "Victory's" cargo. Another vessel is expected soon to take the remainder. The "Victory", when all the stone is out, will be brought up river and beached on Indian Point.

Fred A. Frye's dwelling house, with small shed and stable, on High street near Card's brook, was burned last Thursday morning at 2:30 o'clock. Nothing was saved from the house. The fire is supposed to have caught about the chimney. The dwelling house of Sabin Jellison, only a few feet from the burning building, was badly scorched. The snow on the roof doubtless saved it from catching fire. The fire companies did not go to the fire, as it was beyond the reach of hydrants. The loss is about $750; insurance, $300.

In the item in last week's AMERICAN regarding the State pomological society, a slight error appeared. E. W. Wooster, of Hancock Point, is not a member of the executive committee of the society, but is the Hancock county member of the board of trustees. Mr. Wooster hopes that arrangements can be made to have the next meeting of the State society in Ellsworth, at Hancock hall. He will see the city authorities with regard to engaging the hall, and also the hotel keepers for reduced rates usually allowed in other cities.

A letter received from Dr. Mary L. Burnham yesterday announces her safe arrival back at Chinanfu, in the interior of China, from which the missionaries were driven by the Boxer uprising. Her house and hospital had been looted, many things were missing, and others damaged so as to be useless. She has received the indemnity paid by the government for her losses, and hopes soon to be as comfortably situated as before the disturbance. The guard of soldiers has been strengthened, and she believes danger has passed for the present.

R. H. Young, of Hancock, was in Ellsworth yesterday, returning from a trip up river after furs. He had with him two handsome fox skins, one a silver gray. This is the second silver gray fox Mr. Young has obtained this season, and both were caught on Mt. Desert Island. These skins bring fancy prices. In the many years Mr. Young has been buying furs, he has handled only about ten silver gray foxes, and all but one of these came from Mt. Desert Island in the last eight or ten years. This is just the opening of the fur season here, but Mr. Young says the outlook is good.

There was a slight fire at the home of M. Y. McGown on Church street Sunday evening, under circumstances which cause congratulations that there were no more serious consequences. The infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. McGown pulled a table scarf, upsetting a lamp, which fell to the floor beside the child. The oil ignited, and the child was in imminent danger. Mrs. McGown, who was alone in the room with the child, acted promptly and courageously. First removing the child from danger, she seized the blazing lamp and threw it into the bathroom. Then taking the child from the room, where the fire was still burning, she gave the alarm. The fire was soon extinguished but not until the bedroom and bathroom, with contents, were badly damaged. The loss is estimated at $150 or $200; covered by insurance. By a curious coincidence, about the same time, Mr. McGown's father, James A. McGown, who was down stairs in the house, was having his own troubles with an exploding lamp and a woolly toy dog which caught fire from it. There was little damage, except to the dog.

ASSOCIATED CHARITIES.

List of District Visitors—Thanksgiving Offering in Churches Sunday.

District visitors of the Associated Charities, of Ellsworth, have been appointed for the different wards as follows:—

Ward 1. Mrs. E. E. Rowe, Pine street; Mrs. H. L. Wiggins, High street; Mrs. Fred Blaisdell, Miss Leonora Higgins, Water street; Mrs. Charles Smith, Bayble.

Ward 2. Mrs. A. W. Clark, Park street; Mrs. Josephine Farrell, Church street; Mrs. Lynwood Cushman, Fourth street; Mrs. Elbridge Milliken, Main street.

Ward 3. Mrs. Hattie Hastings, Mrs. Alpheus Moore, Ellsworth Falls; Mrs. Charles F. Hollins, Green Lake.

Ward 4. Miss Mary Ann Grindell, Shore road; Mrs. N. Flood, old Bangor road; Mrs. Louisa Moore, North Ellsworth; Mrs. Mary Bates, Nicolls.

Ward 5. Mrs. Robert Holmes, Maple street; Mrs. Henry Gould, West Main street; Mrs. Asa S. Barron, West M. Seeds, Dollarstown; Mrs. Isaac Avery, West Ellsworth.

So far as possible, each visitor will have charge of that part of the ward in which her home is located. This districting completes the organization of the society, and all now that is necessary to give Ellsworth a benevolent society, as well equipped as those of large cities, is the co-operation of the citizens.

To this end the board of directors requests that citizens shall not give clothes or money to unknown persons at the door or on the street, but shall report each case to the district visitor in whose ward the applicant lives. When this is not convenient, if word is left with the secretary or at the headquarters, room 18, Manning block, on Tuesday, Thursday or Saturday afternoons, the case will be promptly investigated. Further, it is earnestly requested that each person who is willing to cooperate in this work shall keep this list of visitors for future reference.

Next Sunday, Nov. 24, a Thanksgiving offering will be taken in every church for the benefit of the Associated Charities. All money thus received, as well as all money entrusted to the society, will be used for benevolent work only, not for the running expenses.

Mabel Monaghan at Lewiston.

Monday evening the Boston Philharmonic sextette, with Miss Mabel Monaghan as soprano soloist, gave a concert at Lewiston under the auspices of the Musical Union, of that city. Of Miss Monaghan's performance the Lewiston Journal said:

"To many one of the most interesting episodes of this concert was the appearance of Miss Mabel Monaghan, the accomplished young lyric soprano of Ellsworth. Miss Monaghan will be remembered as the 'sweet-voiced soprano' who was heralded some years ago in these columns as a talented young singer of promise. That prediction has been fulfilled in many ways."

"Miss Monaghan possesses that winsome, unaffected stage presence that attracts an audience at once. As she came forward to the front of the stage, very effectively groomed, she was greeted by the many, foremost among them being those who heard her in her highly successful solo appearances at the recent Maine music festival. Her vocalization of the Donizettiaria showed the flexibility of her voice, its purity and marked elegance of tone production, its very unusual truthfulness to the pitch and its splendid technical attainments, all to excellent advantage. The encore piece of the vigorous and insistent recall and the 'Irish Folk Song' did the same."

"But it was only in the dainty 'Land of Nod' and in the famous Melba vehicle, 'The Charming Bird,' that she appeared to her full vocal height when she gave the tremendously difficult arpeggios, trills and high staccatos of the David selection with fine success. The applause was long and pronounced, and she repeated the latter portion with equal effectiveness."

Nothing Tastes Good

And eating is simply perfunctory—done because it must be. This is the common complaint of the dyspeptic.

If eating sparingly would cure dyspepsia, few would suffer from it long.

The only way to cure dyspepsia, which is difficult digestion, is to give vigor and tone to the stomach and the whole digestive system.

Hood's Sarsaparilla cured the niece of Frank Fay, 106 N. THE AMERICAN has subscribers at 106 of the 116 post-offices in Hancock county; all the other papers in the county combined are not so many. THE AMERICAN is the only paper printed in Hancock county, and has never claimed to be, but it is a paper that can properly be called a COUNTY paper; all the rest are merely local papers. The circulation of THE AMERICAN, during the Bar Harbor Record's summer list, is larger than that of all the other papers printed in Hancock county.

Miss Gladys Mayo, organist at the Congregational church, is still confined to the house with a severe cold.

George Phillips and Henrich Richardson are in the office of Dr. J. D. Phillips as medical students.

Allan Lawlor is running his clam factory but is somewhat hampered by lack of clam-diggers, as many are otherwise employed.

Jacob Ma o, Jr., has returned from the marine hospital at Portland, somewhat benefited by his month's treatment, yet still much out of health.

Harry Gilley is moving into the Fred Robbins cottage, lately vacated by Lewis Wilson. Mr. Wilson has moved to North-east Harbor, where he has a fine cottage nearly completed.

Schools have again opened after a week's vacation. Miss Preble, who had charge of the grammar school, has resigned and returned to her home in Massachusetts. Her place is filled by Miss Stevens, of Appleton.

The Congregational sewing circle met at the parsonage with Mrs. Walker on Tuesday of last week. Committees were appointed, and plans for the fair and sale were discussed. It was decided to hold the fair on the evening of Dec. 5. All who feel disposed to help are invited to contribute one or more articles for the sale.

Three Southwest Harbor boys left last week for Boston to seek employment for the winter—Frank Gilley, who will work at his trade as plumber; Rodney Clark, who has to get a bookkeeper's position, and Harold Holmes, who is ready for any good job, but will not doubt enjoy his first visit to the "Hub".

In my news letter last week I tried to tell of the improved health of Mrs. Eliza Robinson, who had suffered from a severe cold, and of the visit of her sister and husband, but our good friend didn't know herself under the name of Mrs. Elizabeth Benson, the type-setter had given her, and felt inclined to doubt the truth of the reporter's statement, as she felt sure her Bass Harbor neighbor of that name had no sister who had married a Wilson.

Hodgkins; Corner, primary, Miss Ethel Crabtree; Union, Miss Edie Mullen; McFarland hill, Joseph H. Doylan.

Wednesday evening, Nov. 13, Mrs. Little Foss Heywood and Charles Anderson were married by Rev. George H. Bailey at the home of the bride's brother, A. I. Foss. There were present Capt. E. N. Foss and wife, Capt. O. W. Foss and wife, C. E. Stratton and wife, A. I. Foss and wife, and N. H. Page. Mr. and Mrs. Anderson will reside in the house formerly owned by A. P. Foss, which they have purchased.

Miss Harriet B. Joy died Thursday morning at the home of her father, Gideon L. Joy, after an illness of several months. Miss Joy was born in Hancock October, 1879, the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joy. She leaves, besides her father and mother, two sisters, Mrs. Henry Butler and Mrs. Wallace Foss, and one brother, Madison Joy. The funeral was at the Union church Thursday afternoon. Rev. G. H. Bailey conducted the services. Two selections were sung by Mrs. Victoria Butler and Miss Helen Butler. The pall-bearers were Messrs. Tenny, Ryder and York.

Riverview local union held its quarterly meeting with the Hancock Y. P. S. C. E. Nov. 5. The morning service was a devotional exercise conducted by Rev. B. F. Russell, of Sullivan. In the afternoon there was a praise service, led by Rev. J. S. Blair, of Lamoine, following which were the reports from the several societies comprising the union. There were presented papers of Christian Endeavor work by Mrs. B. F. Russell, Miss Woodside, Mrs. Crosby, Mrs. Edgar Scammon and others. The evening meeting opened with praise and prayer services, after which Mrs. Russell spoke for a few minutes upon the words "What is man that thou art mindful of him?" At 7:30 was the address by Miss Margaret Koch, teacher of physical culture and education at Colby university, Waterville. Her talk was principally concerning the care of the body and upon Junior work. At the close she recited "The Angels and the Shepherds", an extract from "Ben Hur", which delighted her audience. About 200 were present in the evening.

is all right, if you are too fat; and all wrong, if too thin already.

Fat, enough for your habit, is healthy; a little more, or less, is no great harm. Too fat, consult a doctor; too thin, persistently thin, no matter what cause, take Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil.

There are many causes of getting too thin; they all come under these two heads: over-work and under-digestion.

Stop over-work, if you can; but, whether you can or not, take Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil, to balance yourself with your work. You can't live on it—true—but, by it, you can. There's a limit, however; you'll pay for it.

Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil is the readiest cure for "can't eat," unless it comes of your doing no work—you can't long be well and strong, without some sort of activity.

The genuine has this picture on it, take no other.

If you have not tried it, send for free sample, its agreeable taste will surprise you.

MANSET'S FISH INDUSTRY.

Interesting Sketch of the Large Business Carried on There.

MANSET, Nov. 15 (Special).—Few people outside of Manset have any idea of the extent of the fishing business carried on here. A visit to the wharves most any day in the summer season would bring many surprises to a stranger. Many of the citizens of the place and of the neighboring islands depend almost wholly upon this business for a livelihood.

There are four firms that deal in the business more or less. Capt. James Parker carries on the largest traffic at his stand, having bought during the summer over 1,500,000 pounds of fish, all of which have been split, salted and cured for market. Most of them were sent to Gloucester, but some to Bangor.

B. H. Mayo is the next largest dealer. He has bought about 800,000 pounds. John Hopkins has not bought as much this season as usual, but not a few loads of 20,000 to 50,000 pounds have been deposited at his place of business.

John L. Stanley & Sons are dealers in fresh fish altogether, buying and selling continually during the season.

Some eight or ten large vessels, having a crew from eight to twelve men, are engaged seven or more months in the year supplying these places, and almost a countless number of smaller craft, down to the row-boat, are busy in this industry. Many of them make good money.

They catch mostly cod, hake and haddock, but occasionally a vessel comes in with a supply of halibut, some of them weighing as high as 300 pounds each.

About eight men are at work on the wharves constantly, salting and drying, and double this number are employed when the load is in and splitting is going on.

The salt used on the fish is bought in Gloucester mostly, and comes in cargoes of 300 or 400 hogheads at a time. Not a few thousand dollars change hands for all this supply of fish, salt and labor.

It is an interesting sight to a "tender-foot" to watch the men at work. Fifty thousand pounds of fish in one pile is quite a spectacle to begin with. These must all be split and washed, then put in "butts" and salted. These butts are large hogheads holding about eight quintals of fish. Then, when the drying season comes, they must be put on the "racks" to drain. One day's drying is usually considered sufficient.

Then the shipping time comes, when the vessels are loaded, filling the hold where the fish are piled up like so much cord wood. One thousand quintals is an average load to ship.

One interesting feature of the business is the curing of hake sounds, which are cleaned and dried and put in bags for market. We are told that these sounds are used for settling beer, and also in making of gelatine. Only a few years ago they were sold for the advance price of $2 a pound, but 25 cents a pound is the market price now. The larger part of one man's time is occupied at Parker's in this work of preparing hake sounds.

Another feature is the making of oil from cod livers. The livers are tried out in large iron kettles, under which are ovens or furnaces of brick.

Most of the vessels go "trolling" and are usually out ten or more days to a trip, taking fish enough with them to keep the fish fresh until landing. Many smaller boats go out to the fishing grounds every morning, returning at night.

Some few vessels go "hand-lining". These are gone for a longer length of time, and all their fish are split and salted aboard. The crew of the "trollers" share alike of the stock after all expenses are paid and the vessel's share taken out.

The "hand-liners" have a novel way of deciding their share. Every man fishes for himself and cuts the tongues from all the cod-fish (mostly cod are caught by the hand-liners) and he who has the largest number of tongues when the trip is made up, is "high-line". Every man shares in proportion to the number of cod tongues they have cut.

Such are some of the facts concerning the work carried on at Manset. It is a prosperous business, bringing in not a little money, but it means hard work for all engaged in it.

CHILDREN'S COLUMN

A WHITE RAT.

How It Is Petted, Fondled and Sat Upon by His Monkey Friends.

At one of the zoological gardens a cage of white rats stands quite near the cage of monkeys. The monkeys had always shown so much curiosity about the rats that the keeper one day concluded to put one of the rats in with them to see what they would do. They fairly screamed with delight when the rat entered and at once began to make friends with him.

The rat was inclined to run away from them for the first day or two, but seeing that they did not intend to do him any harm he lost his fear and permitted them to fondle and caress him as much as they liked. This they did constantly, stroking his white fur, holding him in their arms and offering him part of their food. They even picked out the choice bits and gave them to him, as if he were a guest whom they were delighted to entertain.

One day a new idea occurred to the oldest monkey. He had the rat in his arms, and putting it down gently on the floor, he cautiously sat down on it. The rat did not move, nor did it seem to object to the queer use to which the monkey was putting it. As for the monkey, he looked about, with a broad grin on his face, and fairly chuckled with delight over the soft cushion he had found.

After sitting there for awhile he got up so the other monkeys might try it, and they were as much pleased as he had been.

From that time on the rat was in daily use as a cushion, and he took it with perfect good temper, never objecting to it in the least.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

We're three pickaninnyes of Belleville, Jersey. We always run 'e sun all day. And no matter wh' 'e wedder, De fun jus' comes ou' way.

We're little, but we're happy from wake up to lie down, An' 'e worl' is a great big joke. An' 'e smells 'e de river, 'Wich makes some pussions quiver, Sets us laffin' till our sides is broke.

We plays by 'e water, runnin' like 'lasses, Under de big white bridge, An' 'e tugboat come 'e humfin', An' 'e barges wir' their puffin', An' we listens to de trolley on the ridge.

Once 'e come a white man a-takin' of pictures, An' 'e scared we all right, For it made 'e kinder solemn, 'Wen he fixed his what ye callum An' said: 'Hyar, you! Look up bright!'

Se we three pickaninnyes of Belleville, Jersey, We see still 'e hol' 'er clinkin', Pretty soon 'e come 'e bargin', 'Twas the pictur box a-winkin', An' 'e white man was tickle to def.

He tell 'e 'till 'e cullion, honest 'e truly, 'How 'e cotched our face 'e eyes— A black box takes 'e black folks, An' a white one makes 'e white folks— But our mudder says it's all a pack of lies.—Newark (N. J.) Call.

A Smart Seal.

A few years ago some fishermen were following their vocation off a harbor on the Maine coast when they observed a commotion on the surface and soon made out a seal leaping from the water as if followed by some enemy.

It came near the boat, swimming round it several times, and then, making a leap, the men saw that it was being chased by a large fish.

One of the fishermen dropped his line and, stepping into the bow, leaned over and held out his hands. To his amazement the seal immediately dashed toward him and with his help scrambled out of the water into the boat just in time to escape the sharp weapon of a swordfish that darted by, its big eyes staring, probably in wonder at the method of escape. To its fishy intelligence being evidently a case of out of the frying pan into the fire.

But the little seal apparently knew better and it need not be said that its confidence was not misplaced, as the men were so pleased at its action in coming to them they kept it as a pet, and the seal became a familiar object about the shore.

The Game of Whirlwind.

To play an exciting game arrange in a circle as many chairs as there are players and let all but one be seated. There will then be a vacant chair for the person left standing. This he must try to occupy, and if he succeeds the player on his left must take his place in the center of the circle. The only way for the players to prevent the vacant seat from being taken is for the player on the left of it to move on and occupy it. In this way the whole circle is kept constantly on the move, and there is a great deal of merriment over the difficulties experienced by the standing player in procuring a seat.

Don't Give Him Up.

Don't give up a bad boy or turn against him because he is bad. If your parentage and surrounding had been the same as his perhaps you would have been bad too. He may not be altogether bad. Give him another trial at least. Put yourself to the trouble to do a favor for him and do it with an earnest, loving spirit. In many cases this will win him, and when once you have won him he is true until death. If your first effort to win him does not succeed, try again and again. You will get nearer to him each time, and as his associates come over to you he will be drawn nearer and nearer.—Southwestern School Journal.

Hancock County Crops.

The summary of crop conditions in Hancock county, published in the State agricultural bulletin, is as follows:

Quantity of apples, 42 per cent.; quality, 65 per cent. Proportion of winter varieties, 63 per cent. Potatoes are not wintering as yet. A little Bordeaux mixture has been used, with very good results. Yield of yellow corn, 42 bushels. Per cent. of young stock to be wintered, 96. Condition of grass fields, 82 per cent.

Do You Want To Be Strong?

We Have Poof at Hand that Vinol is all that is Claimed For It.

A good many of us have to go "to the city" to get certain things. We will save our friends and customers the trouble of a trip, at least so far as buying Vinol is concerned.

It is one of the greatest tonic-rebuilders that has ever been brought to our attention. Large quantities of it are sold in all of the large cities of our state and elsewhere. Now we have been appointed sole agents for this place.

Vinol is better than cod liver oil for everything for which this greasy mixture was prescribed.

The following from Chillicothe, Ohio, written by Mr. George Burgoon, who says:

"My wife was very much run down in flesh and strength. Commenced taking VINOL and she felt the beneficial results of it before the first bottle was gone. She took four bottles in all and received wonderful benefit. Her strength returned and she gained materially in weight. I am happy to state that she is now in perfect health and we give VINOL the entire credit for this happy result."

Won't you please call on us and let us tell you how VINOL does good or let us send you a book that tells all about it.

We sell Vinol under a guarantee that if it doesn't help you we will return your money.

Castine.

Stephen A. Soule and Henry L. Small, both of Castine, who had been at Pettie's pond, near Vassalboro, stopping in a rude camp for a week or so, were burned out Sunday night, and only escaped with their underclothing on. They were awakened by smoke which filled the camp and was so dense that they were nearly suffocated. Small being the first to be aroused sprang to the door to admit air. When the rude door swung open and cold air was admitted, a flame spread over all the interior. The blankets, clothing, ammunition, rifles and camp equipment were destroyed. The night was not very cold, but snow lay on the ground to the depth of eight inches, and the young fellows in their scant attire did not feel the least bit comfortable. In their haste to reach a farmhouse they missed the regular trail through the woods, and in a few minutes were lost. They wandered about for two hours or more before they came upon the country road. Following this they soon came to the home of Hiram Blaisdell, who took them in. Monday morning, with borrowed clothing, they took the train to Waterville where they secured assistance from friends at Colby.

NORMAL SCHOOL NOTES.

Among the recent visitors to the school were Avis Woods, of Knox Station, class '01; Persis Fowler, of Goodale's Corner, Class of '01; and Mrs. J. W. Emery, of Vinalhaven.

Following is a list of the members of this term's B class, who are to teach this winter, with the towns in which their schools are located: Ruby I. Bickford, Dixmont; Agnes McFarland, Brooklin; Amelia D. Herrick, Charleston; Edna M. Hoffes, Cushing; Edith Hutchins, Trenton; Mary E. Leonard, Sebect; Chester A. Maddocks, Ellsworth; Grace M. Payson, North Haven; Sadie F. Poole, Bristol; Belva L. Sellers, Penobscot; Clarence B. Simmons, Appleton; Frances M. Stevens, Trenton; Bessie M. Weymouth, North Haven.

The school prayer meeting on Tuesday, Nov. 12, was led by Sophia H. Coffin. It was well attended as usual. Miss Coffin chose for the subject "Love one another", a most fitting thought to consider at this, the last meeting of the term.

The students are manifesting much interest in the Eolian concerts given by Dr. Philbrook in connection with the instruction in music. The following programme was given last Friday afternoon: "O Mio Fernando," La Favorite, Donizetti; two arias from La Sonnambula, Bellini; "Ah Che la Morte," Il Trittatore, Verdi; overture, Nabucco, Verdi; quartet, "Bella figlia," Regioletto, Verdi. The last concert for the term will be given Monday. The programme will be composed of selections from French opera.

Saturday evening the farewell sociable took place. It proved a very enjoyable affair. Delicious home-made candy was served.

The Echo, our school paper, will soon be on sale. It is reported to be a most interesting number.

School closes this week, and examinations are the rule. The students seem to be taking them rather lightly, probably because of the excellent work done during the past month.

The football game between Hampden and Normal teams was cancelled on account of the snow. Many were disappointed as this would have been the last game. The boys, however, were determined to play, and tried to arrange another game with Bucksport but failed. The team disbanded, having to its credit four out of seven games.

Waltham.

Miss Isabell Jordan is teaching school in Lagrange.

Irving Young and wife and Mr. and Mrs. Wallbridge, who have been the guests of Stephen Jordan and wife the past week, have returned to their home in Bangor.

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Don't Know It.

How to Find Out.

Fill a bottle or common glass with your water and let it stand twenty-four hours; a sediment or settling indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys; if it stains your linen it is evidence of kidney trouble; too frequent desire to pass it or pain in the back is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

What to Do.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy fulfills every wish in curing rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. It corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists in 50c. and $1. sizes. You may have a sample bottle of this wonderful discovery and a book that tells more about it, both sent absolutely free by mail, address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N.Y. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper.

Bucksport.

Pension of Ephraim B. Woodbridge has been increased to $12.

Jonathan R. Chapman died Sunday, Nov. 10, from the effects of a paralytic shock received months ago. He was nearly eighty-six years of age. Besides the wife, two sons, two daughters and one brother survive him.

The wedding of Miss Augusta McAllister, of Bucksport, and Owen H. Williams, of Bangor, took place Tuesday, Nov. 12, at the home of the bride. Only the immediate relatives were present. The ceremony was performed by Rev. William Forsyth, of the Congregational church. Mr. and Mrs. Williams left in the afternoon for a brief trip. They will reside in Bangor.

SEMINARY NOTES.

School will close November 21 and reopen December 3. The fall term examinations are being held this week. Most of the students and teachers will go away for the vacation. Prof. and Mrs. Ward will be at Addison, and Miss Edna Bright at Franklin, Mass.

The following is the programme of the public meeting held in the Methodist church, Friday evening last: March, Miss Alice Haskell; prayer, Prof. E. A. Cooper; reading of the records, secretary of the Calorietarians; declamation, Ethel Harriman; vocal solo, Margaret Ashworth; discussion—"Resolved, That immigration should be restricted," affirmative, Mary Dorr, negative, Ralph Elwell; piano duet, Grace Grant and Alice Haskell; essay, Alexia Luce; vocal solo, Guida Homer; reading of the paper Euladorian, by the editors, Gertrude Perkins and William Rhoades; piano solo, Miss Grant; miscellaneous business. The reading of the Euladorian has ceased to be merely a school affair, and a crowd of townspeople were present to enjoy the fun with the members of the societies. The editors were rewarded by frequent applause occasioned by the "grinds" on school members.

The work of the students this fall shows an advance in scholarship over last year. This is due to the character of the student body and the fact that the passing grade has been raised to 70. The honor list is as follows: First 95-100; second 90-95; third 80-90.

A large number of new students are expected for the winter term. Many have already registered.

There seems to be no necessity for our town sportsmen going to the north for wild game to get deer. During the past week six deer have been shot within a mile or so from home. Percival Leach has shot two, Fred Wardwell two, Freeman Leach one and Watson Perkins one.

Nov. 18. SCBA.

Franklin Road.

Miss Harriet Dodd Joy, youngest child of Gideon L. and Jane Coolidge Joy, whose death on Nov. 12, at the age of twenty-two years, was briefly reported in THE AMERICAN last week, was born here, and had always lived here, with the exception of an occasional visit to friends in the western part of the State.

She was a willing and devoted daughter, making the burdens of the declining years of her parents lighter by her helping hands.

With her sister, Mrs. Wallace Foss, who had lived in the house for the past two years, she was a constant companion. To her elder sister, Mrs. Henry Butler, she looked for love and counsel which she received. No brother ever held a dearer place in the heart of a sister than did her brother Madison. With her schoolmates and friends she was a favorite, leaving sunshine wherever she went.

She has been in declining health for some time, but not until recently did her friends entertain fear for her recovery. She bore her illness with fortitude and patience. She was confined to the house about five weeks, and to her room only two weeks. Funeral services were held at Union church Sunday, Nov. 18, Rev. H. Salley officiating. Mrs. V. Butler and daughter Helen sang appropriate selections. The floral tributes were beautiful. Interment was at Riverside cemetery. The family has the sympathy of the community. Mr. Joy and his family express their gratitude for kindness of friends and neighbors.

West Brooksville.

Barker Blodgett picked blue violets last Monday.

Miss Ellen Tapley has returned from a visit to Bar Harbor.

Mrs. George H. Tapley left for Rockland Saturday to pass a few weeks with her son Walter.

Schooner "Clinton", Capt. Ed Lord, for whose safety fears have been entertained, arrived here last safe on Friday. Capt. Lord sailed for Islesboro some time ago, with kiln wood, but instead of returning direct home, as he was expected to do, he sailed away before the northerly gale to Rockland, where he obtained a general cargo for merchants here.

The West Brooksville library association calls the attention of the people to the matter of a public library for West Brooksville. The payment of 25 cents entitles one to the use of the library for a year, and a membership in the association. Those who have good books to spare will confer a favor by presenting them to the association. About fifty volumes have already been presented. In order to have the immediate use of a library, a State "traveling library" has been secured, which is free to all the inhabitants of the town. The library is open on Monday, Wednesdays and Fridays from 2:30 to 4:30 p.m.

COALING STATION.

REAR ADMIRAL BRADFORD'S RECENT VISIT TO LAMOINE.

SAYS WORK IS PROGRESSING SATISFACTORILY—NATURE HAS MADE IT IDEAL PLACE FOR STATION.

Rear Admiral R. B. Bradford, who, as chief of the government department which has the supervision of naval coaling stations, selected the site at East Lamoine, visited the station there a short time ago to see how the work was progressing. On his return he stopped in Ellsworth over Sunday, the guest of Senator Hale.

To a reporter, Admiral Bradford said: "It has always been the policy of the navy department to establish coaling stations at reasonable distances apart on the Atlantic and Pacific oceans. That this is a wise plan, was demonstrated in the Spanish war."

"Pursuing that policy, the government purchased sixty acres of land on Frenchman's bay in the town of Lamoine. It is a very fine house and pier for supplying coal for ships of war. There is an especially fine harbor within a harbor. It is very deep water, and there is a large area in which ships can anchor. We hope it will be a favorite as well as a favorable resort for ships in summer. It is a grand good place for recreation and target practice. Nature did all she could for such an end in view."

"There is no better type of coaling station in the world than the one on the Maine coast, and I doubt very much if there is one as good. It is an ideal coaling station, and was needed in case of war."

"The government endeavors to establish coaling stations where they will be well situated geographically. If you will take the trouble to look at the map of the eastern continent, you will see the coast of Maine lies in a gulf, cut off by broad ridges the entire distance from Cape Ann to Cape Sable. In time of war a fleet wants her coal pile behind her. Maine was not sufficiently protected in this respect, and that is why this magnificent station has been erected on the eastern coast of Maine."

"I hope some day to see another coaling station at Portland, which will probably be the case, inasmuch as coal can be readily purchased in large quantities in Portland. However, it was deemed advisable at this time to construct the first station farther up the Maine coast."

"The grounds will be very nice when they are completely cleared up and the whole surroundings will be worthy to be known as a piece of government property. These grounds are very well situated for landscape gardening, and are nearly completed in their 'clearing-up' process. I have a resident inspector at the coaling station who looks after the matter in general, under my direction. When the station is fully completed it will cost $200,000."

Rear Admiral Bradford is a Maine man, a native of Turner, where he was a neighbor of Senator Hale. "I love to come to Maine," he said. "I feel I ought to know the people here. I love to visit the home of my boyhood days. There is still a room reserved entirely for me on my 'home-coming'. It was the room of my boyhood days. In it are the same fishing-rods and guns I had when a boy, and the thoughts that come back to me as I visit my old home, and especially this room, are sweet indeed, but to a degree they are sad."

Admiral Bradford has seen forty years' service, and during that time has been an extremely busy man.

When Admiral Bradford entered the naval academy there were six young men from Maine in his class, only two of whom graduated. They were himself and Capt. Snow, of Rockland. Out of a class of fifty-four Admiral Bradford graduated third in rank of scholarship. Each of the first five in scholarship, of the graduating class, received a star, and it was likewise attached to the name of the young man in the register.

Lay services were held at the church on Sunday, consisting of a varied and interesting programme. In the evening Rev. Mr. Russell gave a fine sermon, in which he made some nice points on the forgiveness of enemies.

Capt. and Mrs. Bennis left Thursday last, for the winter. They were accompanied by their son Fred, who has been staying at home for a few weeks, and who goes to Philadelphia, having been changed from Chicago to Philadelphia by his employers.
